

LOUISVILLE HAS IT

The Galt House Hotel & Suites is located in Louisville, Kentucky, a fantastic city that's easily accessible, friendly and loaded with fun, exciting things to do.

The hotel's two towers stand tall in the heart of the downtown historic district. As Louisville's only riverfront hotel, it offers spectacular views unsurpassed in the city.

Look out your suite's window and you'll see the mile-wide Ohio River meandering its way through the valley. Look the other way and the city of Louisville spreads out before you like an intricate lace embroidery.

And, of course, The Galt House puts you nearby many attractions. Right outside the lobby is the award-winning Waterfront Park with over five miles of jogging/walking paths. Around the corner is the world-renowned Actors Theatre and the Kentucky Center – with its incredible lineup of concerts, theatre and ballet. Just a block or two farther are the Louisville Science Center, Louisville Slugger Museum and Louisville Glassworks – one of the preeminent glassmaking facilities in the world.

EVERYONE IS A VIP

In a city where people say hello as they pass you on the sidewalk, The Galt House considers itself the most accommodating hotel in Louisville. Its friendly, courteous service is a pleasure and offers just what you'd expect from a facility that has been expertly hosting meetings and conventions for over three decades.

What will surprise you about The Galt House is the number and spaciousness of the suites. The hotel has over 600 suites! It's quite possible to provide each attendee with his or her own 720-square-foot suite – all for the price of an ordinary hotel room. Everyone will feel like a VIP. In the long run, it adds up to the kind of extra value and thoughtful accommodations your group will appreciate.

In addition to over 1,300 sleeping rooms, the hotel has 52 meeting rooms of all sizes, including a 30,000-square-foot grand ballroom, an exhibit hall with over 14,000 square feet of space, and an additional 13,000 square feet of open exhibit space.

WHAT'S NEW? ...LOTS

Louisville is a hot spot. It's gaining worldwide attention, drawing more visitors and accolades daily. In two short years, the Muhammad Ali Center and the Frazier Historical Arms Museum will open within a block of The Galt House. To keep pace with the vitality of the area, The Galt House is launching a $50-million facility improvement effort to be completed simultaneously with these future landmarks. Rooms, suites and meeting areas will get a significant makeover. A distinctive glass-domed walkway with unique lounges and restaurants linking our two towers is in the works, along with additional escalators and elevators. Plus, we're adding an elevated, covered walkway that links The Galt House with the Kentucky International Convention Center. The beautifully designed pedway is as much a convenience as it is an architectural work of art.

Established over 135 years ago, The Galt House remains firmly committed to remaining the most accommodating hotel in the city and the region. For more information, visit www.galthouse.com.
